The Adriatic Port Community

The Adriatic Port Community (APC) project aims at developing an IT system prototype based on the “Single Window” principle, namely a single interface improving the exchange of information among the ports involved in the initiative: Venice (IT), Ploce (HR) and Igoumenitsa (GR).

APC's goals include streamlining the administrative procedures related to the arrival and departure of ships especially in terms of time, managing the incoming and outgoing flows of goods in port areas and improving the management of parking areas within the port.

Once fully operative, the prototype will enable a better exchange of information of IT systems of the 3 Ports, thus improving their efficiency and competitiveness.

By analysing the procedures and processes, especially those concerning the flow of goods, custom operations and land transport, APC will identify the needs of the three port Communities.

According to these last, APC will improve local IT systems by setting up four specific modules for the management of arrival and departure, import and export goods and parking areas.

The modules will be able not only to perfect the administration of local port procedures but also to allow the exchanging of relevant information among partners through the shared software application, the “Single Window” prototype.

Venice Port Authority

The Venice Port Authority (VPA) is a public body. Its task is to guide, plan, promote and monitor port operations. VPA promotes a "Model Port" that respects the environment, is safe, open and ethical.

As the lead partner of APC, the Venice Port Authority is responsible with port analysis activities, IT module development and communication activities.
